Make the Characters

Create the characters below according to how you imagine each looking based on the descriptions and from what you remember of their personalities. You can focus on just one part or combine what you know from both of them.

Make sure to label who's who. You can draw them OR you can use the outlines. You will want to color them so you can tell the difference between the sisters, especially if you choose to use the same outline for all of them.

Put them in your folders to keep them safe. We will use them while reading to help keep the characters straight.

In Part 1:

- Meg – 16, “plump and fair, with plenty of soft, brown hair, a sweet mouth and white hands”
- Jo – 15, “very tall, thin, and brown”, “a decided mouth, a comical nose, and sharp, grey eyes”, “her long, thick hair was her one beauty...usually bundled into a net, to be out of her way”, “round shoulders”, “big hands and feet, a flyaway look to her clothes”
- Beth – 13, “rosy, smooth-haired, bright-eyed”
- Amy – 12, “a regular snow maiden, with blue eyes, and yellow hair curling on her shoulders, pale and slender”

In Part 2, after 4 years have passed:

- Meg – 20, “looked very like a rose herself, for all that was best and sweetest in heart seemed to bloom into her face...making it fair and tender”, “braided up her pretty hair”
- Jo – 19, “Jo’s angles are much softened”, “the curly crop has lengthened into a thick coil, more becoming to the small head atop the tall figure”, “fresh color in her brown cheeks”
- Beth – 17, “grown slender, pale, and more quiet than ever; the beautiful, kind eyes are larger”
- Amy – 16, “has the air and bearing of a full-grown woman – not beautiful, but possessed of that indescribable charm called grace”, “her wonderfully fair complexion, keen blue eyes, and curls more golden and abundant than ever”
